Treasure Hacks Sponsorship Information

March 25th-26th, 2022

Our Mission

We believe in more than the power of hackathons but in the power of community. Once joined, students will have the backing and assistance of hundreds of others who would have been otherwise unreachable. This is why we made Treasure Hacks: to gather those who are beginning and those who are experienced in computer science to grow a community eager to collaborate and reach out to those outside their social circles.

Our Hackathon(short): TREASURE HACKS

Hi, we're Treasure Hacks, an online hackathon based in California. We are planning to host the online event, which is open to any english speaking student, from March 25-26 for around 300 students. It will include both the main competition, where students create a solution to their own question based on a theme, and mini events.

Our Hackathon(long):

The competition will follow the typical formatting of online hackathons. Students in groups of up to four, create an idea and must come up with a working solution using programming. This may be a game, service, etc. To support our hackers, we have added learning opportunities in the form of mini-event lectures and other activities, including many beginner-friendly events. These added learning opportunities may be a sponsor introducing their intuitive API or programming service, an industry computer scientist sharing their experiences, or an educator introducing programming techniques. In addition, we plan to assist our hackers through every step in the hackathon during supplementary mini-events. Then, to build a collaborative and friendly community, we are planning collaborative events, a new category to win ("most hackers helped"), and events after the hackathon in a new Treasure Hacks Discord community.

Why We Need Sponsors

In our hackathon, we hope our sponsors will offer to speak, provide workshops, mentors, prizes, and judges. We also need funds to purchase t-shirts and stickers to give out as participation prizes ($3,000). In addition, we are also happy to give our hackers subscriptions for any sponsors' product.

Sponsor Benefits:
